Youth In Need Recognizes Outstanding Volunteers and Donors at Thanks for Giving Reception

Fall is a time to give thanks. At Youth In Need, giving thanks takes on a new meaning at the agency's annual Thanks for Giving reception, which recognizes the year's most outstanding volunteers and donors.

For the second year, Youth In Need held its annual reception at its new central office in St. Charles. More than 100 supporters turned out to honor the 12 award-winners who made a special impact in 2007.

Orvin Kimbrough, Vice President of Major and Planned Gifts at the United Way of Greater St. Louis, was this year's James A. Braun Champion of Children award recipient. In his acceptance speech, Kimbrough captured the essence of the event and why the evening's honorees are committed to helping children and families succeed.

"On the Youth In Need Web site, I saw the statement: 'When young people believe they have a future, life changes,'" Kimbrough said. "Not too long ago, I was a young person who did not believe. I was a young person without hope...I believe that each one of us in this room has a story...But most importantly, we have all figured out a way to navigate the hurt that threatens to arrest the development of so many of our children today. I believe that we have all acquired the empathy and words to articulate what is right and what is wrong...with regard to our most vulnerable population. You wouldn't be here if this were not the case...I celebrate you....All that you have done and all that you will do to help Youth In Need give the broken back their dreams. It was agencies like Youth In Need that helped me reconnect to my dreams. And I am fortunate to be one voice for the many children who are struggling along life's journey."

Youth In Need recognized new inductees into the Visionary Leader's Annual Giving Society. The Society was established to recognize individuals, businesses and organizations for their major investment in Youth In Need. This year's new members include: Rudy and Becky Beck, Jeffrey and Jody Blanton, Jeff and Diana Kolb, The Corporate Group and The Reding Company. ■

Youth In Need will honor Brenda and Maurice Newberry, owners of the St. Charles-based Newberry Group, on March 15, 2008, at the 21st annual Celebration of Youth dinner and auction at the Ameristar Casino Resort Spa.

"Youth In Need is extremely proud to be honoring Brenda and Maurice Newberry at its 2008 Celebration of Youth," said Jim Braun, Youth In Need's President and CEO. "They are terrific examples of highly successful people whose efforts make the community stronger, especially for children and families. The Newberrys have developed their business into a premier information technology firm, and along the way have generously supported Youth In Need and many other helping organizations with their time, talent and financial resources. Their generosity is exceeded only by their humility. They are great assets to our community and richly deserve to be honored at Youth In Need's Celebration of Youth."

2 ■ Youth Update

A Message from the President & CEO

Jim Braun
President & CEO

Dear Friends:

At a recent meeting of Youth In Need's Board of Directors, one of our members told of an experience that touched him. He was at a restaurant reading some Youth In Need Board materials, and the waitress asked: "Are you involved with Youth In Need?" She went on to say that some years ago, when she was an overwhelmed, distraught and terribly depressed teen, a stay at our emergency shelter turned her life around.

I've encountered similar situations many times. Typically, it is some years after help was received at Youth In Need. All of us, sooner or later, face life challenges that can be completely overwhelming. When any of us gets through a very difficult time in life, it's often not until some time has passed that we realize the role and impact people and experiences played in helping get things back on track.

The struggles that lead families and young people to seek help are typically very personal and private. When services end, there are no public announcements or celebrations. Individuals and families simply go about the business of coping, pursuing goals and living their lives. But they do so with newfound hope, confidence and direction.

Countless individuals have played a part over the past year in supporting Youth In Need's mission. This issue of Youth Update highlights the contributions and accomplishments of many of those supporters. In fact, each and every person who has contributed or volunteered has played a key role in helping touch the lives of more than 9,000 individuals this year.

Don't be surprised if, years from now, you by chance encounter someone who unexpectedly thanks you for helping to turn a life around because you were a part of Youth In Need. ■

Youth In Need Has Tax Credits Available for Donors

What could be better than making an end-of-year donation to Youth In Need? Paying your taxes with that donation, of course!

Often, year-end is a time when businesses and individuals find their philanthropic spirits and make donations to their favorite charities. This time of year is no different at Youth In Need. But unlike some charities, Youth In Need is able to offer its donors an extra incentive to give generously.

When a business or individual makes an end-of-year donation to Youth In Need, they, of course, receive the tax benefits of standard federal and state deductions. However, when donors purchase Missouri State Tax Credits from Youth In Need, not only do they receive the standard state and federal deductions, but they also reap the benefits of an additional 50 percent tax credit.

Using tax credits is easy! Youth In Need will reserve the specified amount of tax credits in the donor's name and send the donor an instruction letter and tax credit form to complete. Donors return the completed form to Youth In Need, and Youth In Need will submit the form to state officials. Within four to six weeks, donors will receive their official tax credit letter to include with their tax returns.

Here's what Youth In Need supporters are saying about tax credits:

Dan Rodrigues, former Group President of DRS Technologies and a Youth In Need Development Committee Member, said, "I would have been a Youth In Need supporter anyway. However, the fact that Youth In Need offers its donors tax credits makes supporting the organization personally beneficial as well. Taking advantage of Youth In Need's tax credits gives each donor the power to make a greater impact with their dollars. If a person gives $100 to Youth In Need, then why not give $1,000 through tax credits? With the tax benefits, the $1,000 donation only costs the donor $100. That $1,000 donation goes a lot further to help the children and families Youth In Need serves.

(The above is not intended as tax advice. Benefits will vary depending on the donor's tax status. Consult your tax advisor to learn how tax credits will benefit you specifically.)

Jerry Daniels, retired President and CEO, Military Aircraft & Missile Systems for The Boeing Company, and Youth In Need's Chairman of the Board of Directors said, "I have been taking advantage of tax credits for Youth In Need for many years. I honestly cannot think of a better way to really help a great agency while minimizing your out-of-pocket expenses and knowing exactly how your tax dollars are being used."

By receiving Missouri State Tax Credits for their contribution, donors make a larger impact with their charitable gift to Youth In Need without placing a strain on their checkbooks.

Time is running out. Don't delay! To make an end-of-year gift that can be applied to your 2007 taxes, donations must be postmarked by Dec. 31, 2007. To make a gift over the phone, call Marissa Pulizzi, Senior Director of Development, at 636-946-5600, ext. 254. Donors also may make a gift online at www.youthinneed.org. ■

Support Youth In Need at GoodSearch

Did you know that Youth In Need can earn a penny every time you search the Internet, or that a percentage of every online purchase supports Youth In Need?

GoodSearch.com is a Yahoo-powered search engine that donates half its advertising revenue, about a penny per search, to the charities its users designate. Use GoodSearch.com just as you would any search engine; get quality search results from Yahoo; and watch the donations add up for Youth In Need!

Recently, GoodSearch added a new feature to its toolbox that supports charities. GoodShop.com is an online shopping mall, which donates up to 37 percent of each purchase to Youth In Need! Hundreds of great stores including Target, Gap, Best Buy, ebay, Macy's and Barnes & Noble have teamed up with GoodShop, and every time shoppers place an order, they will be supporting Youth In Need.

As you shop online this holiday season, be sure to visit www.GoodShop.com and enter Youth In Need as the charity to receive your support. Also, be sure to spread the word about this simple way to support the children, teens and families Youth In Need serves. ■

Give an Engraved Brick This Holiday Season

When completing your holiday shopping, there's often a hard-to-buy-for someone on your gift list. What do you give the person who has everything? Agonize no more. Now, Youth In Need has just the perfect gift.

Engraved bricks are placed throughout the garden's walkways and leave a permanent message of love and hope for years to come. All holiday bricks come decoratively wrapped and are accompanied by a gift tag and rendering of your brick's message. Bricks are $125 each and have room for a three-line message of 14 characters, including spaces.

To purchase your brick today, call the Development Office at 636-946-5600, ext. 253. Bricks are eligible for tax credits, too! (See tax credit story at left). ■

All bricks purchased as holiday gifts are decoratively wrapped in burlap and tied with holiday-colored wraphia. Each brick comes with a gift tag, explaining your gift and Youth In Need's garden. A rendering of the brick's message also comes with each brick.

Youth In Need In Brief...

Grant Awards Support Youth In Need's Mission

Many organizations, foundations and businesses have supported Youth In Need in recent months. Youth In Need extends a heartfelt thanks to those who have supported the agency's mission by showing that they, too, believe in the power of potential. Highlights of this support include:

- The Moneta Group Charitable Foundation awarded $2,500 in support of Youth In Need's Emergency Shelter.
- The NAILBA Charitable Foundation awarded $10,000 to the Emergency Shelter.
- The E. Walter Hausstette Charitable Foundation awarded $5,000 in support of Youth In Need's Annual Fund.
- The Daughters of Charity Foundation awarded $20,000 in support of Youth In Need's homeless youth Street Outreach program.
- The Innovative Technology Education Fund awarded $24,000 to help Youth In Need develop an Internet café for the children and teens attending the Emergency Shelter's ExCEL classroom.
- Youth In Need received $7,500 from the AT&T Exclerator grant to redesign and implement a new agency Web site that will be more accessible for the children and families the agency serves.

State Farm Holds Golf Tournament to Benefit Youth In Need

State Farm held its 2nd Annual Charity Golf Classic to benefit Youth In Need and presented the agency with a check for $21,800 at its Thanks for Giving event on Nov. 14, 2007.

Local Restaurant Teaches Shelter Youth Art of Cooking

Erio's Ristorante, a St. Peters Italian eatery, opened its doors for a special cooking class in October. Children and teens staying at Youth In Need's Emergency Shelter brought home-grown basil from the agency's Monsanto Fund Science Discovery Garden to restaurant owner Pete Pulizzi. Pulizzi used the basil in a special class to teach the youth how to make pizza and pasta. After their time in the kitchen, the youth enjoyed their lunch creations with Pulizzi.

Target Decorates Garden for the Holidays

More than 10 staff from area Target stores spent an uncharacteristically warm November Wednesday at Youth In Need's central office, decorating the Monsanto Fund Science Discovery Garden for the holidays. The Target team hung white lights around the garden's gazebo and lighted garland on the garden's surrounding fence. Target donated all of the materials to beautify the property's landscape.

Transitional Living Program Teen Excels in College

Thanks to a special scholarship from Youth In Need Board member Manny Joaquim, his wife Erika and the St. Charles Community College Foundation, Maurice, a teen in Youth In Need's Transitional Living Program, is enjoying the opportunity to excel in college. Maurice said he has always wanted to go to college, and it wouldn't have happened without the scholarship. Maurice enjoys his classes and is pursuing a business degree.

Youth In Need Listed in St. Louis Business Journal's Annual Giving Guide

Thanks to the underwriting support of Brown, Smith, Wallace, LLC, Youth In Need was able to purchase a full-page listing in the St. Louis Business Journal's annual Giving Guide, which hit the newsstands on Nov. 9, 2007. This prestigious guide reaches thousands of Business Journal subscribers and positions Youth In Need among the best of the best area non-profit organizations.

Groups Support Youth In Need Through Donation Drives and Volunteer Opportunities

Youth In Need wouldn't be able to meet the needs of those it serves without the many individuals, businesses and groups that contribute through donation drives and volunteer efforts. Highlights of these efforts include: St. Cletus Catholic Church, E. H. Lyle Middle & High College Prep, Girl Scouts of Greater St. Louis, AMDOCS and Windsor Crossing Community Church Youth Group. ■

Patricia Hunter, LPC, is the Senior Director of Out-of-School Time Programs (OST) for Youth In Need. Hunter has been with Youth In Need for nine years, with a short break working for another company, and has worked in five of the agency's programs. In her current role, Hunter oversees the operation of OST, which is funded by ARCHS. In this role, she supervises approximately 50 staff who serve more than 500 children. OST offers enrichment services during before- and after-school hours in nine St. Louis City Public Schools and one Youth In Need location.

What drew you to the agency when you first started working at Youth In Need?

The agency was family-focused. I was drawn to the mission and vision. And then, once I got here, the people were so committed to what they were doing.

You've worked with a lot of different age groups in your time here. Is there an age you like best?

I liked middle school-aged children, because even though they seem to be the most challenging, they are the most pliable. It's a critical time in their lives. I wasn't always providing direct services but still felt like we were making significant impact in their lives. These kids chose our program over making other choices like selling drugs or getting pregnant. We were able to impact them greatly by keeping them off the streets.

What makes OST different than other programs?

We use a "multiple intelligences" approach, where we focus on eight specific areas (word smart, body smart, number/reasoning smart, people smart, picture smart, self smart, music smart and nature smart). We expose them to multiple areas to see where their strengths are. The kids can see what they like and what they don't like. It's an interactive learning process where children are able to positively engage in fun activities with adults. I think that's the difference between our program and a "baby sitting" setting, where there might be oversight but no interaction.

How does the multiple intelligences approach benefit kids?

It shapes the activities they do. The kids let us know what they like, and they have input in the programming and activities. Multiple intelligences gives staff a guideline on what areas to cover. We do lesson plans, but we learn to listen to the kids about what they like. It teaches them critical-thinking and socialization skills. If they're not successful in math or art during the school day, they hear all day that they're not good at those things. But OST is a self-esteem builder. We help them see what they're good at and help them strengthen that.

Do you get to interact with the kids your program serves?

I make my rounds and read to them and play with them. I miss the direct service part of the job. Luckily, the program is designed so that I can get in there and be with the kids and do an activity with them. I get to know them hands-on and know what their strengths are. I get a chance to spend some time with them. I also get to advocate for their needs in school. Each site is different. It's a unique experience to see how each site is evolving into its own identity while still using Youth In Need's philosophy and mission.

What is most rewarding about your current position?

I get to see the kids and know we are providing a valuable resource to families. A lot of single-parent families wouldn't be able to maintain their jobs without this extra resource. It's rewarding to know we're needed and there for the community. The kids have been impacted positively by our enrichment activities. I think having a great management team and youth development teachers has made it rewarding as well. They are creative, and they love children. They want to be there for them. I think it makes this all worthwhile. ■

Capital Campaign Brings Improvements to Youth In Need's Central Office

Thanks to the generosity of countless donors to Youth In Need's So Every Child Has a Future Capital Campaign, visitors to the Scheidegger Family Youth In Need Center, located at 1815 Boone's Lick Road in St. Charles, have seen many changes.

The agency's central office has been able to install permanent building signage that lights, allowing guests to easily identify the building. The new signs can be seen at the building's front entrance, facing Boone's Lick, and at the building's south side, facing Interstate 70. Additionally, a new Honor Roll of Donors now hangs in the building's lobby, featuring all of the Capital Campaign donors, endowment donors and the agency's prestigious Visionary Leaders Giving Society.

Youth In Need thanks Mike Schlueter from Schlueter on Location for photographing Capital Campaign Co-Chair Jerry Scheidegger and his family for a special portrait that now hangs in the building's lobby. The staff at the Great Frame Up also was instrumental in helping Youth In Need put the finishing touches on its new home.

With 30 percent of the goal to raise, Youth In Need is excited about the tremendous opportunity that exists, and supporters firmly believe that achieving the $3.5 million goal is still achievable. Youth In Need thanks the community business leaders, individuals and community groups that have invested in this vital campaign. Additionally, Youth In Need thanks those in advance for potential future partnership through the Capital Campaign as the organization continues to lead the way for children and families in St. Louis—so every child has a future. ■
